THE employment by the Turks of the Albanians to prevent the Greeks taking possession of the territory assigned them by the conference of the European powers has aroused that people to resistance. They expect to be able to put a force of sixty thoumen in the field. The Greek parliament will be applied for to vote the necessary supplies. The Turks are to send a war feet into the Greek waters, and a sharp, and, it is to be feared, a cruel struggle will be the consequence. It will now be seen whether the Berlin conferences of the European powers were merely manifestations of "selemn bother," or whether Turkish cruelty, extortion and oppression are to be allowed no longer "to wrong the appealing weak or slay the daring brave," and so Europe be delivered from the curse of Moslem power.

CINCIPNATI, July 9.—George Allen Price, the murdeser of Villie Black, was hanged according to law, in the yard of the Hamilton county jail, at twelve minutes past eleven, and was cut down dead twenty minutes later, this forenoon. On the thirtieth day of April, 1879, he shot and murdered Villie Black, is the office of the latter in this city. He was found guity of murder in the first degree and sentenced to be hanged on May 12th, this year. On representations that he was insane, Governor Foster gave him a respite till July 9th. Price was colored, born a slave, in Kentucky, thirty-seven years ago, was freed by the war and came to Cincinnati, where he has since lived. Villie Black was a tobacco merchant, and for eight years, up to a week before his murder, kept Price in his employ. About a week previously he caused the arrest of Price for stealing tobacco from him, then, only a day before the murder, bailed him out. Price went to Black's office and demanded a re raction of the charge of larceny, which was refused, whereupon the murder followed. The conduct of Price, under sentence, has been described as cold, hard and unrepented. He had particular abhorrence of reporters. The redeeming trait was his intense concern for his family, which, it is said, was characteristic of him before the commission of the crime. Until twelve years old, he said, he was reared a Catholic, when, through the influence of the woman who became his wife, he joined the Baptist church. That he abandoned years ago, and up to the moment of his death, and then to the last refused to have a spiritual adviser. An hour before the execution the jailer asked him: "Are you prepared to die?" He answered: "Yes. I've aiways been prepared; ever since I was born." To his best friends, conversing with him this morning, he said: "I suppose a man exists hereafter, and if God made me of dust and breathed life into me, I am his own and I'll trust him to take care of me, and I don't want any nonsense on the scaffold." One most active in trying to get his pusish

He took occasion to express the most intense gratitude to some adies who had visited him in jail and to the ladies who had visited him in jail and to the wife of the jailer, coupled with the with that there might be a hereafter in which he would be enabled to repay the kindness which was so dear, because rendered when the whole public seemed to be merculessly enraged against him. The enormity of his crime and the justice of his punishment he fully realized, and frequently took occasion to remark that all disposition to complain of the courts and the public had vanished. In the case of Marshal Fitzsummons, although considerable pressure has been brought to bear upon the President for his removal, no action has yet been taken, and so far as can be learned the matter has not yet been brought to the attention of the cabinet. His case differs from that of District-Attorney Farrow, in that his commission has not expired, and his removal during the recess of congress, except for good and sufficient cause, would be in direct antagonism to the tenure-of-office act.

In the senate, to-day, the report of the committee on Dufaure's motion respecting the rights of associations was read. It expresses the opinion that the motion constitutes a step in a liberal direction in advance of the existing statutes, inasmuch as it secures the State control, establishes equality, and while granting no favor to the religious and while granting no favor to the religious congregations does not place them under any particular disability. The committee, desiring to put an end to the vexed question, proposed that the motion be taken into consideration. The senate thereupon voted that the motion be declared urgent.
